CALL FOR PAPERS: Special Issue and Workshop

Accounting in different cultures and from different perspectives

Accounting history is a fascinating field of research and researchers from different countries and adopting different perspectives are stimulated to contribute to enrich accounting history literature. Researchers from different countries with a long and rich history have the possibility to explore different times and spaces and different topics, ranging across: biography, prosopography, institutional theory, public sector accounting, private sector accounting, not-for-profit organizations; but also the possibility to explore these by applying innovative research methods and an array of theoretical frameworks. Researchers from different countries, such as Portugal, Italy, Spain, Germany, but also from different continents, such South America (for example, Brazil and Mexico), Asia (for example, India, Russia, China), Africa (for example, Mozambique, South Africa, Angola), as well as others locations in the world, have the possibility to build upon the rich and long history of their country, and create a base for future comparative accounting history research, bringing to light rich and ancient archival sources.

Accordingly, submissions are encourage based on empirical, case studies and different times and spaces which include but are not limited to the following issues:

- History of accounting theory and practice;
- Private sector accounting history;
- Public sector accounting history;
- Not-for-profit organizations;
- War and accounting history;
- Accounting history in times of crisis;
- History of accounting, auditing and managerial professions;
- Accounting, gender and history;
- History of accounting education;
- Management accounting history;
- Biography and prosopography in accounting history.

Special Issue Workshop

To help authors prepare their manuscripts and obtain helpful feedback for submission, a Special Workshop will be held on 24 November 2017 at School of Economics and Management, University of Minho (Braga, Portugal). The workshop is a fast track for the Special Issue of Accounting and Cultures and papers are presented and discussed in order to prepare them for final submission. Please be aware that presentation at the Workshop does not guarantee acceptance of the paper for publication in Accounting and Cultures. Also, participating in the Workshop is not a precondition for submitting a manuscript to the Special Issue.

If you are interested in participating in the Special Issue Workshop, please email your paper to Delfina Gomes (dgomes@eeg.uminho.pt) and Stefania Servalli (stefania.servalli@unibg.it) before 15 September 2017.
